What's New in the Llama Stocks?

Llama Stocks is a stock monitoring tool specially designed for Java. This can be used by anyone who wants to monitor the exchange of stocks. This application offers an attractive interface and an ergonomic design to satisfy all users. All you need to do is input the stock you want to monitor and the amount of money you want to monitor. With Llama Stocks, you will be able to view all the results you are able to monitor. You will also be able to see what time was the last time you monitored the stock. Key features: * Monitor a stock at any time * Monitor the prices of a stock at any time * Monitor the profit / loss of a stock at any time * It is possible to monitor prices every 10 minutes, every hour, every day or every week. * Monitor stocks of any country * Support for a wide range of languages: English, French, Spanish, German, Italian and Portugues * Multiple users (you do not need to buy individual licenses) * Ability to save your data into a single file * No special servers or internet connections needed * No need to add your stock prices into the system. The application does all the calculations * Web based: it allows you to access the system through the Internet (you don't need a dedicated computer). * The application is accessible by anybody who has a good knowledge of Java * Also accessible by any user through the web (thanks to the presence of a web server) We had no problems with the installation. It was very easy and the instructions on how to use the application were very clear. We downloaded the first version and were very impressed with the tool. The interface is clean and the variety of available stocks allows you to monitor several stocks simultaneously. The program needs some improvement in the following areas, however: * The automatic update of the data. It would be very useful if you could view the current information and see what has changed compared to the last time you viewed the data. * I suggest that, instead of displaying prices, you only provide the last price of a stock. You could then choose to display a graph of the stock, the current price, the historical price or the graph of the current price and the historical price. I only have one suggestion to make to the application and this is the possibility of automatically generating graphs of stock prices. I use this feature of this application every day and it is very useful. The implementation of this function is simple and it would be easy for the developer to implement it. The presentation of the information that is generated (via the Internet) would be very simple. The price to profit ratio is incorrect when the stock is first entered. Other than this, I am very impressed with the application. It would be possible to add some other feature to it. Such as a
